Many children and families today have busy schedule causing them to find it difficult to sit down for homemade meals every day. Many kids' diets involve a lot of convenience and takeout food. But these foods can be unhealthy. They can have a negative effect on your child's health and can even develop into lifelong diseases.

Healthy eating has many benefits for children. It can:

- stabilise their energy.
- improve their memory.
- even out their moods.
- help them maintain a healthy weight.
- help prevent mental health conditions, such as depression, anxiety, and ADHD.

In addition, having a healthy diet and focusing on nutrition are some of the simplest and most important ways to prevent the onset of disease. Healthy eating can help prevent many chronic diseases. These include obesity, heart disease, high blood pressure, and type 2 diabetes.

Healthy eating habits are more likely to stay with you if you learn them as a child. That's why it's important to teach your children good eating habits now. This will help them build good eating patterns to avoid chronic diseases like those listed above, as a child or as an adult.

18. Many children do not eat homemade meals because _____.

- A. their parents find convenience in takeout foods
- B. their parents have busy schedules
- C. they do not like the taste of it
- D. it has negative effects to their health

Changing Our Vision

There was a very wealthy man who was bothered by severe eye pain. He consulted many western doctors and traditional medicine men. He consumed all kinds of medicines and traditional remedies. But still, the terrible pain did not go away. Instead, it seemed to get worse.

At last, a monk who was supposed to be an expert in treating such patients was called for by the suffering man. The monk understood the man's problem and said that for some time he should concentrate only on green colours and not to let his eyes fall on any other colour. It was a strange prescription, but the man was desperate so he decided to try it.

The millionaire got together a group of painters and purchased barrels of green paint and directed that every object his eye was likely to fall on, to be painted green just as the monk had directed. When the monk came to visit him after a few days, the millionaire's servants ran with buckets of green paint and poured it on him since he was dressed in red. They were afraid that if their master saw any other colour but green, his eye ache would return.

Hearing this, the monk laughed and said, "If only you had purchased a pair of green spectacles, worth just a few dollars, you could have saved these walls and trees and pots and all other articles and also could have saved a large share of your fortune. You cannot paint the world green."

I have been chosen to attend one of the parties. I need your help. I would like you to join me in the Fancy Mask Party. I know that you can design very creative looking masks. Bring two of your best masks. One for you and one for me. There will be fifteen prizes to be won. I hope you will be able to join. Please let me know. Until then, bye.

Your friend,
Marcus

SECTION CQuestion 1 (Suggested answer)

It had been raining heavily for the past several days. The drain were overflown with rubbish. Debris floated across the road. Several people waded through the floodwaters. Some of them carried their belongings.

There was a hill behind a row of houses. Rainwater flowed down the hill. It loosened the soil so small plants washed down the hill.

There was muddy water in the road. Several vehicles were stuck in the middle of the road. The drivers got out of the vehicles to escape the rising flood waters.

Many people had to stay at the flood evacuation centres. There were large mats placed on the floor. Some of them watched the news on a large-screen television. Others rested on the mats.

Question 2 (Suggested answer)

It was raining heavily. Haikal and his father were on their way home from school. Suddenly, lightning struck a tree along the road.

The tree fell onto the road, right in front of their car. It blocked the road so Haikal's father had to turn the car around and take another road home.

It was a longer drive home but Haikal and his father were thankful that they were safe without any injuries. They were lucky that the tree had not fallen on them.

On the way home, Haikal's father managed to warn the other drivers about the fallen tree.

When Qisha scored all A's in her year-end examinations, her parents bought her a laptop gift. Besides searching for information for her projects, she used the laptop to browse for latest updates. One day, she stumbled across a food blog with beautiful pictures. She shared it with her friends and they went to the cafes and restaurants recommended by the website. Then she thought to herself how great it would be if she could replicate a similar effect by starting her own blog. As she loves cooking, she decided to share her recipes online.

Qisha got her mother's help to take the pictures. Then she learnt to edit the pictures and uploaded them. When her recipes did not turn out as she had hoped, she worked on it relentlessly, improving wherever necessary.

She also made sure that her recipes are healthy and the steps to prepare the food are simple and clear for others to understand and follow. Every month, she will come up with a theme to excite her readers. From one-pot cooking to cute bentos and nourishing soups, Qisha would put in effort to make them attractive and update her blog frequently.

Soon, her blog was spotted by her friends and they enjoyed following her recipes. Qisha was very happy that her favourite pastime and hard work could spread cheer and encourage others to eat healthily.

Haze precautions

Haze is an atmospheric phenomenon in which dust, smoke, and other dry particulates obscure the clarity of the sky. Prolonged exposure to haze affects people with respiratory illnesses or decreased lung functions. If you notice the air quality is poor, please take the following precautions to protect yourself.

Avoid outdoor activities. Children, pregnant women, the elderly, and those suffering from chronic illnesses, especially heart and respiratory diseases, should remain indoor.

Drink more water and eat ample fresh fruits and vegetables. They help the body to flush out toxins absorbed through the skin and lungs. It also improves the immune system.

Close all windows and doors in homes. Use an air purifier or turn on the air conditioner.

Take your medication regularly, especially those who suffer from heart and medical problems. If you feel breathless at any point in time, seek medical attention immediately.

Under severe haze conditions, wear a respirator if you must go outside. Respirators work better than surgical masks. They come with the right filter to remove fine particles found in the haze.

16. Why you should remain indoor during haze?
 - A. to avoid harmful particles in the air
 - B. to avoid water particles in the air
 - C. to avoid open fire nearby
 - D. to avoid poor vision while driving

17. Who are most prone to hazards of the haze?
 - A. women
 - B. men
 - C. teenagers
 - D. people with chronic illness

18. What is not a component that contributes to haze?
- A. dust particles
 - B. smoke
 - C. dry particulates
 - D. water molecules
19. Under severe haze conditions, why you should wear a respirator rather than surgical masks?
- A. It looks cooler
 - B. It enables respiratory organ to work better
 - C. It removes fine particles found in the haze
 - D. Its cheaper than surgical masks
20. Which is NOT the precaution you should take during haze?
- A. close all windows and doors
 - B. avoid outdoor activities
 - C. drink more water
 - D. exercise regularly indoor

The Lion King takes place in the Pride Lands, where a lion rules over the other animals as king. Simba is the newborn cub of King Mufasa and Queen Sarabi. Simba is to be the new heir to the throne. Mufasa's younger brother, Scar, is furious that he will no longer be the heir to the throne. So, he plots to kill Simba.

One day, Scar tricks Simba and gets the hyenas to kill him. Fortunately, Simba is rescued by Mufasa.

Scar further plots by promising the hyenas, forming an army. Then, Scar lures Simba into a ravine for a "surprise from his father". He then signals the hyenas to go down into the ravine where Simba is. Once again, Mufasa races to rescue Simba from the hyenas. He saves his son, but unfortunately dies in the fight. However, Scar convinces Simba that he was responsible for his own father's death and advises him to run away from the Pride Lands, never to return. Scar once again sends the hyenas to kill Simba, but Simba manages to escape.

Scar happily informs the creatures of the Pride Lands that both Mufasa and Simba were killed by the hyenas and he is taking over the throne as he is the closest relative of the king.

Simba returns after Scar strikes his mother. He forces Simba over the edge of Pride Rock, just as a lightning bolt starts a fire below. As Simba dangles over the edge of Pride Rock, Scar whispers to Simba that he killed Mufasa. Enraged, Simba leaps up and pins Scar to the ground.

Traditional timber Malay homes of the Sultans and the rich and famous dating back to the 19th century and earlier were usually decorated by intricate carvings with motifs of ferns, calligraphy, geometrical designs and even animals such as bats.

These carvings could be external panels of the walls or part of the roof edges, windows and the columns of the balcony. The panels that were perforated allowed air and sunlight into the homes to ventilate and light up the home. At night the twinkling lights from the homes also added a certain charm to the rural setting.

Carvings such as these were specially carved by skillful craftsmen. The wood too was chosen for its wood tone, fine grain and durability. The process of carving was long and arduous.

First, a motif was chosen and drawn on top of the panel. Then each panel was hand carved with great care using different chisels. When the designs were completely carved, special rough leaves were used to smoothen the surfaces of motifs. After that a special wood colour lacquer was used to paint on the surface to give it a more lasting shine. This panel then would be ready to be used.

Dear father

How are you? School holiday is around the corner. I have a suggestion that we go to Gua Tempurung for caving activity. I heard it is an interesting place to go to.

It is located at Perak. We can do a lot of caving activity together there and I know that you love nature. It is suitable for our family and we can spend time together. It has a fee of RM11 for caving activity. It is also open at 7.00 a.m until 10.00 p.m. so we have a lot of time to spend together there. What do you think?

SECTION CQuestion 1

Amin lives with his mother in an old wooden house. They are very poor. Yesterday was his birthday. He had never celebrated his birthday or received any presents from anyone before. He felt very sad.

His class teacher, Puan Syuhadah, knew that it was his birthday. Puan Syuhadah bought a chocolate cake for Amin and threw a surprise birthday party for him. All his classmates bought presents for him.

Amin was surprised and very happy at the same time. He cried tears of joy when everyone sang him the birthday song. He hugged his teacher and thanked all his classmates.

Question 2

Last Sunday, the villagers of Kampung Manggis organised a gotong-royong. Almost all the villagers came to help. They brought tools and equipment to do their work.

The villagers gathered in front of the community hall. Before they started their work, the headman gave a short briefing. Then the villagers were divided into groups. Each group was given different task to do such as cutting the grass, clearing drains, repairing and painting equipments at the playground and planting more plants at the park.

They finished their work at around 5.00 p.m. The villagers were tired but happy to see their village clean and beautiful.
